Communication Details

Father of Client called today to let me know that he was not made known by his ex-wife of the fact that his child would be in and that was concerning to him since he has sole decision-making when it comes to any and all medical concerns (which n therapy falls under this definition). He also noted that he wants to be a part of what's going on and so I told him that he wa: to send me an email with any information he would like to share or he can talk to me about a time we can schedule a paren that he would be in charge of paying for so that he could offer any information from his perspective. I also clarified that I w: informing everybody involved of everything that goes on and everything that is requested so as to stay within the parenting father also said that the reason for his call was to also send me the parenting plan so that I understood that he was to be in all medical concerns, including therapy.

All needs are met unless you want to help and split their therapy costs? I've paid $390 so far.

We had a personal session where I was interviewing him and shared that the kids and I are grieving a separation. I really like his style of communication and have tons of referrals for him working with children.

Then we had a family session.

Then Elora had a 1 on 1 with him.

She loves Marcus and feels safe to communicate with him.

Per the child support order on page 12, it states that I can request DCS to collect expenses owed directly to me. However, since we've been able to work together peacefully, I'd prefer to avoid that route and hope we can resolve this amicably.

If you choose not to go through insurance, your proportional monthly share for therapy would be $136.62. I'd appreciate it if you could send this directly to me via Zelle (kit@kitspins.com) or Venmo, before the end of the month.

Please let me know if this works for you or if you have another solution in mind.

Thank you,
Veronika

Hello,
I'm confused, what happen? You said since you choose that program you would be paying for their sessions that you brought them to because they were on some scholarship? Not saying this rudely, just looking to understand that. If I brought them I would pay that. If I brought them I would pay for their session, but I have not brought them over my time. This is one reason I want to make sure you and I are communicating before a decision is made on something like this. This is an expense I did not agree on and now you're coming to me asking for the money to cover their sessions that have already happened? Again, just looking to understand the situation and what happened. Thanks

Of course I will participate in paying for service for the kids, I'm just looking to understand what happened.

I want to clarify the situation regarding the children's therapy. The "scholarship" offered by Larch is essentially a low-income fee adjustment, not full financial aid. Since Elora has been in therapy there before, Dan extended this reduced fee to help us get the support our children need.

Therapy is clearly in the best interest of our children, but I'm facing financial constraints now that my largest source of income has ended. It's a struggle to afford
