Sent the following email to mom

Hello Veronika and Matthew,

I wanted to summarize what we discussed on January 9th, 2025. I spoke with you both at different times, and wanted to make sure this information is available in case you need to refer back to it.

Our discussions included goals for Raina, while there might be more concerns brought up, we all agreed these are good starting points.

1) Create stabilization and structure for Raina.

It is the adults responsibility to create the structure for Raina. This can include consistent routines with school, transitions, bedtime, etc. You can have different routines at each one of your homes, but they should be consistent and stable within your home. I also recommend that each of you help Raina with making her nightly call to the other parent.

2) By creating stability and structure, Raina will hopefully be better able to manage big emotions, and reactive behaviors.

It's the adults responsibility to hold boundaries for Raina and hold her accountable when she does have unwanted behavior. The adults will more consistently hold boundaries without the use of yelling, or other fear reducing methods of behavior management. (We are humans, when we do lose control such as yelling, repair is key here. Making sure to apologize, and having adults model accountability)

3) Monitoring age appropriate content and discussions.

Both mom and dad need to monitor what content Raina is watching or viewing. I would eliminate any access to the internet without direct adult supervision. Discussions should be watched closely, and only age appropriate things discussed around Raina. Parents should not be bad mouthing the other one, talking about grown up things. The goal is to not burden Raina with adult things and create a safe environment for her to have loving and trusting relationships with both parents.

Let me know if you have any concerns or questions on this.

Sent the following email to dad

Hello Veronika and Matthew,

I wanted to summarize what we discussed on January 9th, 2025. I spoke with you both at different times, and wanted to make sure this information is available in case you need to refer back to it.

Our discussions included goals for Raina, while there might be more concerns brought up, we all agreed these are good starting points.

1) Create stabilization and structure for Raina.

It is the adults responsibility to create the structure for Raina. This can include consistent routines with school, transitions, bedtime, etc. You can have different routines at each one of your homes, but they should be consistent and stable within your home. I also recommend that each of you help Raina with making her nightly call to the other parent.

2) By creating stability and structure, Raina will hopefully be better able to manage big emotions, and reactive behaviors.

It's the adults responsibility to hold boundaries for Raina and hold her accountable when she does have unwanted behavior. The adults will more consistently hold boundaries without the use of yelling, or other fear reducing methods of behavior management. (We are humans, when we do lose control such as yelling, repair is key here. Making sure to apologize, and having adults model accountability)

3) Monitoring age appropriate content and discussions.

Both mom and dad need to monitor what content Raina is watching or viewing. I would eliminate any access to the internet without direct adult supervision. Discussions should be watched closely, and only age appropriate things discussed around Raina. Parents should not be bad mouthing the other one, talking about grown up things. Let me know if you have any concerns or questions on this.

Hello,

I wanted to let you both know of something concerning Raina brought up in our last session.

Raina mentioned to me that she was "really worried", and that "she was going to miss dad so much". When I asked her what she meant by this, she said "She was scared that she wasn't going to see dad ever again". I reassured her that she would always have a relationship with dad and asked her what made her think this. She responded "I don't know, I just can't stop thinking about it".

I would love any insight from either of you, of what could possibly spark this thought?

One of the things I talked about with both of you, is creating stability between the homes. Making sure Raina knows and gets reassurance from both of her parents, that she will have a loving and stable relationship with each of her parents is key here. I would ask that each of you just reiterate that to her.

Please let me know if you have any questions or insights. I will keep working with Raina on this. :)

Thanks!

Communication Details

Clinician sent email on 3/7 to Gracey Pearson addressing new safety concerns that Raina shared with me on Monday 3/3. Email is below.

Hi Gracey,

Thank you again for taking my call. I saw Raina on Monday 3/3/2025 where she shared new information with me.

Raina entered my office telling me "I am a bad kid, all I do is lie. I am bad" She shared that mom yells at her all the time, tells her she is lying, and spansks her. When asked how often she gets spanked, Raina replied with "a lot." Raina also said that at her dads house she is never spanked.

Raina has also asked me questions "why she has to leave dads house", and made statements that "mom doesn't play with her".

It should be noted that I have not spoken to mom about the use of corporal punishment with Raina. After my interactions with both Raina and mom I have increased concerns of how that information will be used. For that reason I have not talked to the mom about any new information that has been shared with me.

Thanks for your time! Let me know if you have any other questions.

Danielle

Client received call from dad 10 minutes before session on Thursday 3/27. Dad said that mom's car was parked in front of our offices and Raina was refusing to come in because mommy had showed up. Clinician went outside to talk to Raina, to tell her that we were safe, mommy wasn't in the building and reassure her that mom would not be coming. Clinician also offered to lock lobby door, and office door that way mom wouldn't be able to enter the building. Raina agreed to this, but wanted to check the building to make sure once inside and it was locked. Throughout the session if she heard a noise she would ask me make sure it wasn't her mom.

Clinician emailed Gracey with DCYF to share new details of living situation with Raina. Email is below;

Awesome thank you. Raina asked last week to speak with me, (it was our off week from therapy), her dad made an appointment for Thursday 3/27. Ten minutes before our session her father called my line, and said Raina was freaking out because her mom's car was parked out front (I can't confirm this, as I don't know what the mom drives) but Raina was able to describe the car out front perfectly. I had to go outside to Raina's car, to provide reassurance that her mom was not in our building and that she would not be allowed in our building. I even went as far as saying I would lock the main lobby office door, so that no one else could enter our building (I was the only therapist left for the night). With my reassurance, Raina did enter our building as long as I locked the door. Throughout our session if she heard a noise she would ask me to go make sure mom hadn't come in, which I did.

She then shared with me that mom knew a man she called "grandpa" but isn't her actual grandpa was buying them a RV to live on his land. She shared that the man always wants hugs from her but she doesn't want to give him hugs, because he's creepy and gross. She also shared that he has tried to kiss her on the lips but she told him she doesn't like that or not but he still tries. She told me she doesn't want to live next to this man in the RV.

She also asked repeatedly for me to not tell mom about this. That I could only speak about it with dad and stepmom because she doesn't want mom to get mad. This concerns me as a professional but also makes it difficult because I don't want to ask mom about my concerns, in fear that the blame will be put on Raina.

Thank you again for your time. Let me know if you have any questions or if I should relay this information somewhere else.

Client's father asked to speak to clinician on 4/3/2025. Clinician spoke with father for 30 minutes along with stepmom Monica. Client's father shared that Raina had stayed two extra nights at their house. During this time Raina's behavior was great. They also shared that Raina that morning had told them "I made my decision, I want to live here with you guys".

They also shared that Monica went to a baseball game where all parties were at. They shared that Raina got in trouble for talking to Monica, and when Raina asked if she could stay an extra night at her dad, mom said yes. They reported after that Raina said she would cuddle her mom the next night, and her mother said "we will see about that". They were concerned about using cuddles/connection as a weapon.

Communication Details

Dad asked to speak on a phone call with me on 4/4. He told me it was urgent. Dad told me that during school pick up, the mother came up to him asking why he called the CPS. He told her he didn't. He said that he felt she was trying to intimidate him with her fiancé Collin present. He said he had to get school officials to get involved to ask her to leave, as well as calling the police. He described this situation as unhinged and stated he would be filing a protection order against her and Collin. He wanted to relay this information about safety concerns for myself.

Dad also shared that his other two children told him the night before that Raina was slapped across the face, spanked, and thrown against the door.

Clinician emailed Gracey on 4/6 with updated concerns about the Father's information. The email is below:

Good Evening Gracey,

Hopefully this will be my last email to you! Thanks again for taking the time to read all my emails and be supportive of this family.

Raina's father called me on Friday night to notify me of a couple different things. He told me that the children told him (all second hand information at this point), that Veronika spanked, slapped and threw Raina against the door the night prior. I am meeting with Raina tomorrow, so I will be curious if this is something she brings up in our session.

Lastly, I know there was an altercation at school with the parents. Involving who called DCYF, since it was my email that reopened all this I just wanted to ask if my name will be given to Veronika. I understand that's not your choice, I just want to make sure I am taking any safety precautions as this seems to be escalating.

Thank you again for all your time and dedication.

Clinician emailed mom back about bedtime concerns. Email is below

Hi Veronika,

It sounds like bedtime is really difficult. I think there is a lot going on right now, and I imagine Raina can feel that. When it comes to bedtime it sounds like you are doing the things I would want you to do. Bedtime charts, reading, songs, cuddling, etc. I will be honest with you, I am not a fan of corporal punishment used on children for a desired behavior. While not illegal, research suggests it can have damaging effects on a child's behaviors. As a parent myself, I understand the frustration but I believe it's important to set the example of being able to remain calm and firm without escalating our own behavior.

A couple things come to mind here: do you guys have an awake/sleep clock? A lot of time this helps with early risers but might help with Raina. It's a clock that you can set times it will turn red when the child should stay in their bed and green when they can come out (this obviously excludes times when the child might be sick or have a nightmare).

I would also suggest setting the expectation with Raina an hour in advance, such as "we are all going to play UNO, but after its bedtime" or "Raina you have an hour before bed, is there anything you want to do before we put our bodies to sleep?"

I would also limit all screen time at least an hour before bed as well.

I would keep maintaining this boundary in a calm and consistent way. No negotiating, if she comes out of bed, walk her back to bed, and repeat the bedtime message "It's time for our bodies to get some rest, so we can have a fun day tomorrow".

Let me know if you have any more questions or any concerns!

Symptom Description and Subjective Report

Mom asked clinician to meet with both her and partner to discuss bedtime. Mom was emotional and upset after everything that had happened with restraining order and not seeing her children.

Mom and partner laid out the night of bedtime that transpired- Mom believes that Raina came home from dad and is dysregulated. Mom stated there no calming her down, screaming, screaming on the toilet. Mom did normal bedtime routine but eventually had to take a break because Raina wouldn't stop screaming. Eventually mom lost control spanked Raina and told her to "get the fuck out" from that point Alora came out screaming "to not hit her sister". Mom stepped away. Collin took over, and laid with them, and talked to each of them and eventually got them both to calm down and sleep.

Mom showed remorse for her behavior

Alora shared that night that she was worried mom was going to lose custody.

Communication Details

Father of Client called today to let me know that he was not made known by his ex-wife of the fact that his child would be in therapy, and that was concerning to him since he has sole decision-making when it comes to any and all medical concerns (which he said therapy falls under this definition). He also noted that he wants to be a part of what's going on and so I told him that he was welcome to send me an email with any information he would like to share or he can talk to me about a time we can schedule a parent session that he would be in charge of paying for so that he could offer any information from his perspective. I also clarified that I would be informing everybody involved of everything that goes on and everything that is requested so as to stay within the parenting plan. The father also said that the reason for his call was to also send me the parenting plan so that I understood that he was to be involved in all medical concerns, including therapy.

Mother of client sent the following email to me and the clients father:

"Hi Mario,

"Thank you so much for your time with Aidan today. He seemed like a new person leaving your office, as if a huge weight had been lifted from his shoulders. I asked if he wanted to share any part of the session with me, and while he preferred not to, which I fully respected, he did mention how much he enjoyed playing "avocado."

"Is there anything that came up in your time together that might help us support Aidan in both of our homes?

"Thanks again for all you're doing for him.

"Warm regards,

"Veronika"

And I responded with the following to both mom and dad:

"Hey all,

"Today we got to know each other better and discussed goals of therapy. Aiden came up with the goal of "listening to directions better at school and home" for what he wants to work on in therapy. Are there any other goals that either of you would like for me to add to the treatment plan? Feel free to email me back privately if you'd like, or you can respond here.

"Thanks!"

Mom emailed me with a screenshot of a message from a teacher informing that he said an inappropriate word (anus) in class that day. Mom sent the following message along with it:

"Hi Mario!

"I hope you've been well. I am now seeing a pattern where Aidan acts out during his father's weeks. When I bring it up to Aidan he panics thinking I'm going to yell at him. His father yells at him. I didn't yell but expressed to him calmly that he needs to be respectful so his teacher can teach. Then I told him I was proud that he knew the appropriate term for butthole 🤔 and we said it over and over until his anxiety went away."

I responded with the following:

"Thanks for sending! I appreciate the information."

Mom emailed the following to me and CC'd Aidan's father, Matt:

"Hi Mario,

"Thank you so much for your time with Aidan today. He seemed like a new person leaving your office, as if a huge weight had been lifted from his shoulders. I asked if he wanted to share any part of the session with me, and while he preferred not to, which I fully respected, he did mention how much he enjoyed playing "avocado."

"Is there anything that came up in your time together that might help us support Aidan in both of our homes?"

"Thanks again for all you're doing for him.

"Warm regards,

"Veronika"

My response:

"Hey all,

"Today we got to know each other better and discussed goals of therapy. Aiden came up with the goal of "listening to directions better at school and home" for what he wants to work on in therapy. Are there any other goals that either of you would like for me to add to the treatment plan? Feel free to email me back privately if you'd like, or you can respond here.

Mom emailed the following to me and the clinician working with my client's younger sister (Danielle):

"Hi Mario and Danielle,

I wanted to share an update regarding some recent events that seem to have impacted the kids' emotional state.

Yesterday, after Elora's therapy session, all the kids seemed to regress. I decided to keep them home from school and took them into the forest for a mushroom-hunting outing. Spending time in nature really helped them decompress—by the end, they were calm, stable, and proud of the hard work they put into the hike and finding the chanterelles. The outing seemed to reset their energy in a positive way.

However, today the kids had their mid-week visit with Mat, and they came back dysregulated. It's upsetting to hear some of the things he and his wife, Monica, said to them. Mat criticized Elora, saying, "It's not your fault you didn't go to school, it's your mom's," which left her feeling bad about missing school for the outing. He was aware of the reason they didn't attend school since he was cc'd on the school's email, yet he still chose to speak negatively about me in front of them.

Raina even asked me, "Why does Dad hate you?" while Aidan has been more withdrawn and shuts down when situations like this arise.

I know there may not be anything that can be done directly, but I wanted to keep you informed, as it seems important to note these experiences and their effect on the kids.

Thank you for all your support.

Veronika"

And mom included a screenshot of an email she sent to the school stating:

"All children are regressing after therapy.

Lots of meltdowns.

I'm keeping all kids home for a personal day consisting of donuts and mushroom hunting."

Mom sent the following message:

"Hi Mario,

I wanted to update you on a recent development regarding Aidan's ADHD assessment with Dr. Stein. Aidan's teacher sent the Vanderbilt assessment to Dr. Stein without my knowledge, which led him to consider ADHD as a possibility. While Dr. Stein did not rush to prescribe medication and instead recommended a cognitive assessment to check for potential learning issues, I'm unsure of the necessity. Given Aidan's prior testing for the PAT program last year, I don't believe he has a learning disability.

Despite my repeated requests for the assessment, his teacher initially declined to share it and then included the principal and school psychologist on the email thread, which was very strange. I am concerned that my reputation may be impacted at the school, with Mat portraying me as "high-conflict." After writing that email I included snapshots of, Mathew sent the assessment! Which means he had it the entire time and never shared with me.

After reviewing the assessment, which I've forwarded to you, I am heartbroken by some of the insights, particularly Aidan's reported feelings of worthlessness. This has not been my experience with him, and I am worried that witnessing past instances of conflict may have affected him more than I realized. I don't see any indicators that Aidan has ADHD, but I am open to hearing your thoughts on this and documenting it as needed.

Thank you for your support,

Veronika"

Mom also sent a video link from instagram of Dr. Gabor Mate sharing his perspective about how he believes ADHD to be a coping mechanism for babies and children dealing with stress and that it is not a real disorder.

I responded with the following:

"I'll look over all of this and let's discuss it at our next parents session. Sorry you have had such a difficult experience with all of this!"

"Just had a conference with Aidan's teacher. It seems to be a concern that Aidan's group of friends kind of abuse him a little bit. He's under the assumption that even though Finn hits him that's how he shows love and I've told him before that it's never ok to push, shove or hit anyone and that group of friends aren't really friends if he is pushed around by them.

Mom emailed the following to me and the clinician working with her daughter:

"Dear Danielle and Mario,

I wanted to share my concerns regarding the children's lunch situation at school. After realizing what Raina has been eating for lunch, it's become clear to me that a special lunch—provided by the school since January 2023—is in their best interest, especially considering Aidan may have ADHD or be on the spectrum.

It's incredibly frustrating that their father does not prioritize their needs and instead creates unnecessary complications. I'm beginning to understand how this lack of support has negatively affected Raina's emotional well-being.

I've attached screenshots showing that Mat was included in the special lunch communication, so there is no reason why he shouldn't be advocating for the children's food sensitivities.

Thank you for your continued support, and I hope this provides helpful context as we work together to ensure the best outcomes for Raina and Aidan.

In gratitude,
Veronika"

She also included two screenshots of emails back and forth with the elementary school discussing dietary restrictions (emails were from 01/09/2023), and included the following recent email to the school:

Hi Robin,

I hope this message finds you well.

It's come to my attention that there may be some conflicting information regarding my children's lunch arrangements, specifically from their father, Mathew Ralidak. Today, I noticed Raina had milk and an Uncrustable, both of which her doctor has recommended avoiding due to their inflammatory effects.

As you know, it's important for our children's health and well-being to maintain consistency with their "special lunch." Dr. Bowker's recommendations—which I believe I sent over last year—are designed to prevent inflammatory responses that can impact their emotional and cognitive functioning. You've always been incredibly supportive of these guidelines, and I truly appreciate your understanding.

However, the lunch staff mentioned there is an email from Mat stating that the kids can have "special lunch" when they're with me but can eat anything they want when they're with him. I understand this may cause confusion, but it isn't your responsibility to track which household they're at. I apologize for the trouble this situation has caused and would like to clarify this for the sake of our children's health.

Could you please share a copy of the email Mat sent regarding the different food guidelines for each household? Additionally, moving forward, I would like to request that all of my children remain on "special lunch" throughout the school year, regardless of whose care they are in. I will speak with Mat directly to remind him of Dr. Bowker's recommendations and reinforce the importance of consistency in their diet.

Thank you so much for your continued care and support with this matter. Your help ensures that my children (and their teachers) have the best possible days at school.

Warm regards,
Veronika Goodnight

Mom emailed the following:

"Hi Mario,

During tonight's FaceTime, Aidan didn't want to talk at first, which is really unusual for him. When he finally opened up, he just cried about missing his old house in Everett. It broke my heart. I let him express his feelings and just be in that moment with him.

To help him process, we talked about all the different houses he's lived in and what he loved about each one. Then, I encouraged him to imagine bringing all his favorite things into the new home we're searching for.

It was an intense call, and it was hard not being able to physically comfort him. I just wanted to share how sad he was, in case it's something to explore in your next session. That said, I feel like we ended the call in a connected and stable place.

Thanks for everything,

Veronika"

She also included a screenshot of a facetime video where her son Aidan appears to be crying.

Mom emailed the following:

"Hi Mario,

I wanted to reach out regarding Aidan's emotions surrounding all the moves he has experienced. While the moves on my end have been out of my control- I had to leave an abusive relationship with their father, then move again from toxic landlords after our dog was killed on the farm and now we are facing issues with black mold and other unsafe conditions in our current home- I have always done my best to prepare my children. I've included them in the home-searching process, kept them informed, and ensured they were never blindsided by transitions within my control.

However, last night Aidan shared with me how deeply sad he is about his father moving from the Everett house. He expressed that he was completely caught off guard when, after spending a week with me, Mat and Monica took him and his sisters to lunch and casually informed them that they were moving. Both Raina and Elora were in tears at the table, and Aidan was also crying, struggling to process the sudden change. When they returned to the Everett house, it had already been fully staged and moved out of, which left him feeling blindsided and deeply unsettled.

Aidan is particularly sensitive to not being told what's going on in his dad's home, and this has really affected him. While I can support him with love, reassurance, and open conversations about our own moves, I don't know how to help him navigate the lack of communication from his father. I've encouraged him to bring up his feelings with Mat and also to share them with you, as I believe he needs additional guidance in processing these emotions.

I want to note that I did not CC his father on this email, as I feel this is private and sensitive information between Aidan and me. I want to ensure he has a safe space to express his emotions without concern about how they will be received elsewhere.

I would really appreciate any insight you can offer on how best to support him through this. Thank you so much for your time.

With Gratitude,

Veronika Goodnight"

Mom sent me the following:

"I am exhausted. Keeping you two in the loop. What fun."

Then included screenshots of a message from Aidan's dad and her response covering an event that took place at the elementary school during pick up.

And she included the following forwarded message she sent to Adam Del Rosso.

Hi Adam,

I just wanted to take a moment to thank you for the way you continue to show up with empathy and professionalism during incredibly difficult moments. Today was especially hard, and your calm presence reminded me that there are people in the school community who truly see and understand the complexity of what I've been navigating.

As you know, I've been doing my absolute best to care for my children and stay present in their lives. I've spent this past week volunteering, showing up, and supporting them through emotional challenges—and today, I was so proud to be there for Aidan during his recognition. These are the moments I live for as a mother.

Unfortunately, I was blindsided by another CPS call during the assembly—this time questioning the stability of our living situation. It's heartbreaking and exhausting to keep defending myself as a mother when I know, without a doubt, how much love, time, energy, and intention I put into raising my children. We've recently been given an incredible opportunity to live and grow on a farm, surrounded by support, and my kids are genuinely excited and thriving with this new chapter.

I also want to be honest: Mat continues to be a source of emotional trauma for me and the children. His behavior today was unsettling and manipulative—filming us, twisting facts, and trying to involve others in ways that feel like intimidation. He is not someone I trust, and unfortunately, these cycles of control and chaos are not new to me. What hurts the most is knowing my children are not allowed to call me when they're with him, and I'm left to sit in silence after pouring everything into their care this week.

I just want to live in peace, raise my children well, and continue building the stable, joyful life we all deserve. I'm grateful for your understanding and the grace with which you navigate these situations. It means more than you know.

With Gratitude,
Veronika Goodnight

Mom said the following:

"Hi Danielle and Mario,

I wanted to share some important context that may be relevant to your work with Raina and Aidan, particularly as it relates to potential emotional stressors they may be navigating.

There has been a pattern of my co-parent, Mathew Ralidak, scheduling and altering medical appointments for the children without coordinating with me—despite our court-ordered parenting plan requiring such coordination. Most recently, he changed Elora's appointment with no notice and brought her to a provider unfamiliar with her medical history, bypassing her established care team. I share this because it reflects an ongoing dynamic that may affect the children's sense of consistency, safety, and trust in adult decision-making.

Additionally, I recently discovered that false information about me—including fabricated claims of alcohol abuse, drug abuse, and mental illness—was entered into Elora's medical chart. I did not provide or consent to this, and it echoes past legal behavior that the court has previously found concerning. I am taking appropriate steps to have this corrected.

I am sharing this information solely to provide context and support your understanding of any emotional or behavioral responses you may observe in Raina and Aidan. Please let me know if you need documentation or further information for your clinical records.

Thank you for your continued support of the kids.

Sincerely,
Veronika Goodnight"

Mom said the following:

"Dear Danielle and Mario,

I hope this message finds you well. I'm writing to share an update regarding ongoing challenges with Aidan and Raina's father, Mathew Ralidak, which I feel are impacting the children's emotional stability and their ability to maintain consistency in care and routine.

There have been several recent incidents in which the parenting plan has not been followed—specifically around medical coordination, missed transitions, and appointment cancellations without my knowledge. Today, Mat failed to show up at our previously agreed-upon custody exchange location despite multiple confirmations via TalkingParents. I was at the location as scheduled and am currently filing a non-emergency police report to document the incident. I haven't seen or talked to my children in 8 days.

This follows a pattern of exclusion and unpredictability that I am actively documenting for court and mediation. I continue to uphold my responsibilities and make every effort to maintain a stable and peaceful environment for the children, despite Mat's resistance to co-parent respectfully.

I am sharing this not to involve the children in conflict, but so you are aware of the underlying dynamics that may be contributing to any behavioral or emotional patterns you observe in session. My hope is that their therapeutic environment continues to feel like a safe and consistent space, especially when so much feels out of their control.

Please let me know if there's anything you need from me to support their care. I value your insight and am grateful for your role in their emotional well-being.

With Graitude,

Mom sent the following:

"Dear Danielle and Mario,

I wanted to inform you that I was recently notified of a temporary protection order that was filed by Mathew Ralidak and granted through King County on April 11, 2025. This order currently restricts both myself and my fiancé from contact with Mathew, his wife, and—most painfully—my three children, including Aidan and Raina.

I have not yet been served with the full documentation, but I understand there is a hearing scheduled for April 25, 2025, at 8:30 AM, at which I will have the opportunity to respond. Until then, I will fully comply with the order while preparing my legal response. That means I will not be able to take our children to their scheduled therapy appointments.

I'm sharing this with you confidentially so you are aware of the abrupt change and the potential emotional impact it may have on the children. Please know that my intent remains focused on protecting their emotional safety and ensuring they continue to receive support and consistency in therapy.

If there is anything you need from me during this time, or if I can assist in maintaining continuity of care for the kids through appropriate channels, I'm happy to do so.

Thank you for all you continue to do.

With Gratitude,

Veronika Goodnight"

"Is canceling best?! Shouldn't we document as Mathew is interfering with their therapy?! Elora's therapist just informed me that Elora was a no show. She was calling CPS with interference of her therapy. Isn't this the same thing?"

I responded with:

"I will write out everything in the cancellation note, the reason I need to cancel is so that you do not get charged for a session that you are not able to bring your child to. I'll document everything properly and take the necessary action steps. You can trust me on that. Let me know if you need anything else."

Mom responded with:

"Thank you 🙏"

My god thank you. This has felt like such an alone process and there's all these people of authority who are saying somethings wrong, what mats doing isn't right and I have to conjure the power of the Gods to not just cry all day. I have never gone this long without hearing or touching my children and I feel like I'm dying. But I know it's only temporary. I know this is for the highest good for me and my children. I'm so sad Aidan won't see you this week. He values your time. My heart is hurting. I hope mat brings him. I'm sorry. I'm venting.

Thank you for your help on your end.

Oh!! Wait. May I request your notes please? I would like for my documentation."

Later I sent the following to mom of client:

"Matthew reached out today to let me know that he could bring Aidan in on Monday. Just letting you know. I'll charge Matthew for the session since he is bringing him in."

"I found this awful video used in first trial. Holding Raina!!! When he pulled back his fist I was holding Aidan.

He is so abusive and now I can't touch, see, or hear my children for 22 days?!? In our 2nd trial's supplements and findings this is what the judge said!!!! How is Mat getting away with this?! I've been to EVERY practice, game, and dr appointment until last week. I can't even uphold my volunteer responsibilities at their school!!!

" Balance of Harms and Advantages

The Court is required, under RCW 26.09.260(2), to balance the detriments and advantages of changes to the residential schedule. So far, this Court has focused on discussing Ms. Goodnight's shortcomings and Mr. Ralidak's strengths. However, Ms. Goodnight has many strengths as a parent and Mr. Ralidak has shortcomings. Ms. Goodnight is highly sensitive to the children's emotional needs. Mr. Ralidak is not. When the Court inquired with the parties regarding the emotional needs of the children, Ms. Goodnight discussed how the youngest is prevented by Mr. Ralidak from calling her mother to say goodnight. Mr. Ralidak allows this 6-year-old child to cry herself to sleep, calling out for her mother, because he believes imposing a regimented bedtime routine is paramount. This shows a callous lack of understanding of the children's emotional needs, particularly when applied to a child so young who is missing her primary caregiver.

When the Court inquired about the emotional needs of the children, Mr. Ralidak tellingly did not respond with a discussion of the children's emotional needs, to be heard, to be understood, to be loved. Rather, he discussed routines, stability, responsibility, and other admirable traits and structures that are important for children ... but that have nothing whatsoever to do with their emotional needs. It is clear to the Court that the change in the residential schedule should not result in the children being away from their mother for more than a week; in fact a weeks' time, on a regular basis, may be too long, particularly considering the emotional needs of the youngest child.

In order to accommodate the children's emotional needs, particularly that of the youngest child, not to be away from either parent for a full week; to allow Ms. Goodnight to remind the children to utilize the emotional regulation techniques she is working with them on;

and to enable Mr. Ralidak to monitor the children's homework and healthcare more closely, the Court finds it necessary to allow a mid-week visit for each parent.

The Court will also modify various miscellaneous provisions of the parenting plan in an effort to resolve ongoing disputes (and avoid additional court hearings) and more clearly define how the parents must make decisions going forward."
